

Disclaimer

Control My Rate, LLC respects the privacy of our customers. We place a high priority on protecting the Personal Information provided to us and have physical and electronic safeguards to prevent such disclosure. We do not sell or share any customer lists that contain your Personal Information to other companies or vendors.

Our employees and agents cannot use your Personal Information for purposes other than those which we at Control My Rate, LLC authorize.

Comparison rates are based on the data you entered today into controlmyrate.com and the most recent information the insurance companies have filed with state regulators. Please note that you may not be offered a quote due to certain eligibility requirements. In addition, the rates shown may be higher or lower than what has been provided by this comparison website based on your credit history, prior insurance history as well as claims filed with previous insurers. You also may be eligible for other discounts. Some companies on our website use credit history to determine rates. If we cannot tell how a company uses credit to determine a rate, we provide you with an average rate based on your information entered. Each company may assess your credit history differently from how other companies do it. Since we only provide rates for some companies, other companies in your state may have rates that are higher or lower than those provided here. Competitor companies did not furnish descriptions of the policies and rates provided. Control My Rate cannot sell or give advice about the rates or policy contracts of any company that they do not represent. If you have any questions, please contact that company or an authorized agent.